

Last updated - November 19th, 2008

The following list of cities is known or believed to have requirements governing alarm equipment or response.

This list may not be all inclusive of every jurisdiction that may have requirements or fully represent the specific requirement. Contact the municipal agency responsible for the jurisdiction for more information.

City names may be listed multiple times if more than one requirement is listed
State level requirements are listed at the top of each section of state listings

SIAC assumes no responsibility for the accuracy of this data as it pertains to the obligations of the customer or alarm company to be compliant with state or local laws

This information is subject to updates and/or changes without notice. Please check back for updated information regularly

CITY_NAME	STATE_ID Requirement	Recent addition to listing
Verified response	Police will not respond unless alarm company provides visual verification of an actual crime in progress Typically requires a private guard company to be dispatched to the site or may permit remote video or cross zoning as a method of verification. Typically illegal for alarm company to call Police Department unless verification is confirmed Severe fines associated with violations Typically Hold Up and Panic alarms are excluded from requirement.
Broadcast and File	Alarm company permitted to notify Police Department of alarm activation Police Department prioritizes or determines response, if any, based on situation Visual verification, multiple alarm points or audio confirmation may cause required police response Police may or may not respond to site based on other factors - known crime patterns, historical false alarm problems or officer availability Fines for excessive false alarm activations may occur Suspension of alarm response may occur Typically Hold Up and Panic alarms are excluded from requirement.
Permit required	Municipal or Police Department permit is issued to alarm system site and may carry cost Alarm company may or may not be allow to call Police Department when permit is not on file Alarm company may be fined for calling Police Department when permit does not exist Alarm user may be fined if alarm company calls Police Department when permit does not exist Fines for excessive false alarm activations may occur Suspension of alarm response may occur
ECV required	Enhanced Call verification (ECV) Requires the alarm company to call more than one telephone contact number before calling Police The number of attempts may vary based on local policy Second or supplemental calls are typically made to key holders not located at the site
Premises Verification Required	A call by the alarm company to the protected premises is required before a call to the Police Department can be made
